EMERGENCY 000

To contact the police, fire or ambulance in an emergency, call 000 from any telephone in Australia. Calls are free.

When to call Emergency 000

You should only call 000 if someone's life is in danger or an urgent response is required from police, fire, or ambulance.

What will happen when I call Emergency 000?

The operator will ask you the following question:

"Emergency, Police, Fire, or Ambulance?"

Tell the operator which emergency service you require:

Police
Fire or Ambulance

You will be then transferred to the emergency service you request.

Remember

When you call 000 it is important to stay calm, stay on the line and clearly answer the operator's questions.

More information

More information is available at www.triplezero.gov.au